21 SCHOOL ST., BOSTON.

(From the New York Daily Tribune.)

There is no better musical critic in this country than John S. Dwight, of Boston, and few men are able to express what they have to say about music in a manner at once so poetic and precise. His articles are sure to please the learned in music, and to delight its lovers. We commend his journal unreservedly to our musical friends as a work which will be an able running commentary upon musical events, extracting from each its significance, varying its critical notices of music and musicians, both new and old, with biographical and entertaining details; and always true to what is most interesting and commanding in this noblest of the Arts.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY!

PHOTOGRAPHIC OIL PAINTINGS
ON CANVASS.

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE JUST PATENTED their new process for taking Photographic Impressions on Canvas, and are now prepared to take them in this city. The correctness of delineation and beauty of these paintings, which are produced with two short sittings, and a trifling expense, can only be fully appreciated by examination. Faithful life-size portraits made by this process from daguerreotypes of deceased persons. Our other various styles of colored Parisian Photographs, taken as usual, and at no other establishment in America.

PHOTOGRAPHS.

THE UNDERSIGNED INVITES ATTENTION TO the specimens of this Art exhibited at his Gallery, No. 359 BROADWAY. Heretofore the French have been regarded as the only successful practitioners of this beautiful novelty in Art; an examination, however, of the results exhibited at his establishment will convince the Public that the acknowledged superiority of American Daguerreotypes extends also to the kindred Art of Photography.

Any desired size, from life to small miniatures, taken perfectly without re-touching. They are susceptible of coloring, and thus supply the place of Oil Portraits or miniatures. Copying carefully executed by this process. Large copies produced from small originals. Daguerreotypes from Life, Old Pictures, Paintings, and Statuary, as usual.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Athenæum (London.)

A JOURNAL devoted to Poetry and Art has been started in New York—to which we find ourselves pretty extensive contributors—under the title of THE CRAYON. It is a journal of fine aspiration—full of ideal strivings—and appears to us one of the best proofs we could receive of the possibility of a great future for Art in America. Its writers—like many of the young and spiritual, and immature, in our own country—adopt rather warmly the Pre-Raphaelite heresy; but they will work their way out of this convention, like Mr. Millais himself, in time, retaining what is good and earnest in the new protest against Tradition in Art as opposed to Nature, and reconciling that precious acquisition with the best lessons gained from the Experience of Genius.

The Southern Times.

THE CRAYON.—We have taken occasion, at different times, to name the merits of this valuable Art-Journal. In its own department it has no rival in this country. Its spirit and aim, directed by refined intelligence and animated by the lofty genius of true Art, are such as to engage the affections of all sincere students of taste and beauty. Every week we read it with peculiar profit. It brings us so many genial criticisms and sound discourses on Art and its kindred topics, that it never fails to refresh and invigorate our faculties. We owe it already a large debt in the way of pleasant hours and chosen thoughts, and we should be glad to see it in every home that cherishes any sort of interest in the purifying and ennobling pleasures of Art.

The Boston Christian Register.

It is no discouraging sign in these unprosperous days that a new Journal, devoted to Æsthetics, should have been successfully carried through its first volume, and started on its second with such renewed life. The New York CRAYON is fortunate in having for its chief editor, such an indefatigable worker, energetic writer, and one who understands himself, his subject, and the American people, so well as Mr. Stillman. With Mr. Durand, a son of the President of the American Academy, for his coadjutor, and backed by a corps of contributors, who number among them many of the most prominent writers of taste in the country, and not a few of our first artists, whom we hitherto knew almost nothing of as writers, such as Durand, senior, Huntington, Rembrandt Peale, and Greenough,—he has made his first volume a repository of much that is valuable. Before a second is completed, to this list will be added most if not all of the other American writers of repute, including our best poets, while from our far-famed artists in Italy efficient aid is promised. When we say that the sympathies of Ruskin himself are already enlisted, and that measures have been taken to secure other writers of note in Europe, we think it no exaggeration to say that it will soon offer a list of contributors, that is not even equalled by that of any other periodical in America.

Evening Post.

We are sure, for our part, that its readers have no reason to complain of the degree of ability with which it has been conducted.

The Congregationalist, (Boston.)

THE CRAYON—of whose unassuming merit, general readableness and real indispensableness to the public welfare each number more fully persuades us—commenced its second volume on the fourth instant. We hope no man who has anything of the scholar lingering about him, will neglect subscribing for this admirable journal, because it is an Art-paper, and he is neither an artist or a connoisseur. We are neither, ourselves, and yet we are fascinated into a carefulness and extent of reading when THE CRAYON comes, which we bestow on no other of our exchanges, and it is our deliberate opinion that it would be cheap to clergymen at $5 a year, for the aid they would find it to be, in various ways, in the illustration and elaboration of sermons.

The Evening Mirror.

As a journal of criticism in matters of Art and taste, THE CRAYON is the best in this country, of whatever pretension. We sometimes cannot agree with its opinions and sentiments, but we always enjoy the manner of their utterance. THE CRAYON is a voice that should reach every cultivated family and person in the Union.

Putnam's Magazine.

THE CRAYON.—This agreeable weekly has passed its first volume, to its own credit (we hope profit also), and to the benefit of its readers. As a record of current events in the world of Art, as a critic of contemporary painting, &c., and as a vehicle for the discussion of the deeper principles of artistic philosophy, it has shown itself to be a real acquisition to our literature. Among its contributors are mentioned some of the most distinguished artists and amateurs, not only in this country but in Europe; while the editors evince a profound knowledge of their specialité, and a hearty, almost religious enthusiasm in their work.

Evening Bulletin, (Phila.)

It is really an admirable publication. It grasps the subject of the Arts—particularly painting and sculpture—with genuine energy, and investigates its fundamental principles with boldness, originality and sound judgment.

Its reputation among literary men, amateurs and artists is everything that could be wished, and it increases with each successive number. The London Athenæum has spoken of THE CRAYON in terms of the greatest respect, and we need not tell our readers that the Athenæum is no mean authority in such matters.
